

Everybody Deserves The Financial Security: Cure Your Relationship With Money

I have been passionate about finance for the past 25 years and as a representative in this domain my objective has always been to assist people to the best of my ability to make their daily lives easier with regard to their finances. During my career, I have traveled hundreds of thousands of kilometers to serve my customers and I am grateful to have had this privilege, along with some wonderful experiences which have made their mark on my own personal development. My aim is to promote prosperity for everyone who has the desire to change their life and destiny, and, as a result, to help the world with these accumulated riches, thanks to the principles set out in this book. In 2013, I attended a conference in New York, during which it was mentioned that our finances are 80 % linked to our psychology and only 20 % to more mechanical functions. I was amazed by this discovery since in my mind everything was based on logic and left little space for creativity or the power of the mind. I am now aware, however, that the problem lies mainly in our consciousness and essentially with resources that we often believe to be limited. It is for this reason that my book partly addresses the system of beliefs, for it is true that we need to modify our thought structure with regard to this energy that we call money. I wish you great happiness and affluence in your lives so that you can change your vision of yourself and your fellow human beings with the objective of being ever more passionate about your personal finances.
